The course content delivered in the webinar is as follows

“SYNOPSIS WRITING”

The speaker of the session Adv. Chetan Dhore presented the keynote address on introduction on topic synopsis writing and the basic concept of writing a case brief/summary and its importance in legal studies.

The speaker explained the meaning of briefing as a way of to isolate the significant elements of judicial opinion and preparing a short-written summary of that information. He added how to prepare these written summaries which serves different purposes at different times. Told the students that briefing requires to read cases actively and critically. Said that one has to read the court opinion very carefully and decide which information is important to the result and which is not. He added that case brief should contain enough information what but not too much.

By active reading student identify the rules of laws found in the court cases and analyse how Court apply this rule of law to the facts of a case in an objective and rational manner and also focused on using strategies to consolidate critical information and details into fluid summary. He explained the various components of a case brief like relevant facts, issues. Contentions, law points, rule of law in detail during the lecture.

At the end of the session, he inspired the students by lively interacting on technicalities of case briefing and summary writing.
