WHAT IS AN ONLINE LEARNING PLATFORM?

- An online learning platform is an information system that provides a safe learning environment where students can take online courses.
- These online learning platforms are often called 'online course marketplaces' because they give learners the opportunity to search for and pay for online courses directly.
- While some of these course marketplaces are used to feature online courses that you can create, the majority are more educational-based and strictly offer university-level education.
- An online course platform is a type of learning management system (LMS) that online instructors can use to create, host, deliver and sell online courses.

EDX & OPEN EDX

- ED.org(course marketplace) and Open-edX are two sides of the same coin. EdX is the learning platform where students find online courses from various universities and Open-edX is an open-source content management system. They were created by a team of scientists from Harvard University and MIT with the goal to provide online university-level education across the globe.
- EdX.org has powered more than 8,000 online courses from more than 100 prestigious universities and businesses that offer higher education in many disciplines. They make courses available in many disciplines – engineering, computer science, data science, humanities, business, and management.
