Report on Field Visit

The Yatra Cell of Dr Ambedkar College Deekshabhoomi, Nagpur, organized a visit for about 50 students to ‘The Ancient Indian History, Culture and Tradition Department’ of Nagpur University. The Archaeological Department, of RTM Nagpur University, Nagpur in collaboration with the Archaeological Survey of India, Nagpur, staged an exhibition titled 'Heritage of India - Rich and Vibrant'. This exhibition was under the backdrop of Indian Science Congress which was hosted in the Nagpur city from 3rd to 7th January, 2023.

This exhibition featured early-era deity statues discovered during excavations. Furthermore, they displayed a variety of these items from excavation of different places all over India, highlighting our country's colorful and rich culture during the early historic as well as medieval period. They also displayed a variety of ancient bangles used by our ancestors.

Objects were discovered in the Attirampakkam sites in Tamil Nadu's Korttalayar valley, where a major discovery of a remnant portion of a human tibia and hand axes dating to at least 1.07 million years ago was noted, and Adamgarh, a town in Madhya Pradesh's Hoshangabad district, which is well-known for its murals and the presence of Paleolithic items, were among the main attractions of an exhibition.

The students were also given detailed information about the work of the Archaeological Survey of India. The exhibition beautifully portrayed some fascinating information about renowned civilizations like the Harappan Civilization and the way of life of those who lived there, captivated students' interest.
