A National Conference on 'Bond Between Man and Nature in the Light of Literature' was organized on Monday, February 27th 2023 at Adv. Dadasaheb Kumbhare Auditorium.

Dr. B. A. Mehere, Principal of the college welcomed the guests and in her address expressed her thoughts on importance of literary studies in human life. She congratulated the team of department of English for organizing a conference on a very relevant theme.

Dr. Sanjay Palwekar, Professor and Head, Department of English, RTMNU, Nagpur was the Keynote speaker for the conference. In his scholarly address to the gathering, he spoke on, repercussions of environmental deterioration; in an emphatic manner he further explained that 'Nature can fulfill our need but Nature cannot fulfill our greed'. He said that as a global citizen we must look forward to protect environment and how hyperconsumerism is leading us all into crisis. He discussed the Romantics' critique of industrialization and their concept of Pastoral themes. Nature as an independent theme in poetry came into prominence in the work of the Romantic poets- Wordsworth, Coleridge, Byron,

Shelley, and Keats. How children at "Chimney Sweeper" by Blake, were required to work long hours. Shelley showed a preference for the dynamic aspects of Nature, such as the West Wind and the cloud. For Wordsworth man is a part of nature, not something out of it, or far from it. In American Literature, Emerson talked about Nature's tameless aspects, and how Nature helps us to comprehend humanity as a whole.

Dr. Sukanta Das in his presentation spoke on the aspects of eco-criticism. He said that eco-criticism is an important topic in the field of literary criticism and has ample avenues for research. He suggested to look into every topic with a critical eye where man and nature are a point of discussing. He mentioned critical remarks of various critics and explained the topic in an easy manner. His entire discussion was focused how to select topics of relevance for literary studies and make a significant contribution in terms of criticism.

Dr. Kapil Singhel in his valedictory remarks to the conference spoke at length on how nature has been a permanent presence in literature. He gave examples on how from the era of Chaucer to post modern era, it has been there for explaining issues of human existence and how the effects of disturbance to nature has ruined the pleas users and beauty of life. He congratulated the entire team of the conference for selecting such a good topic for academic deliberation.

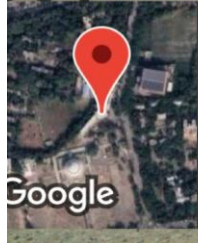

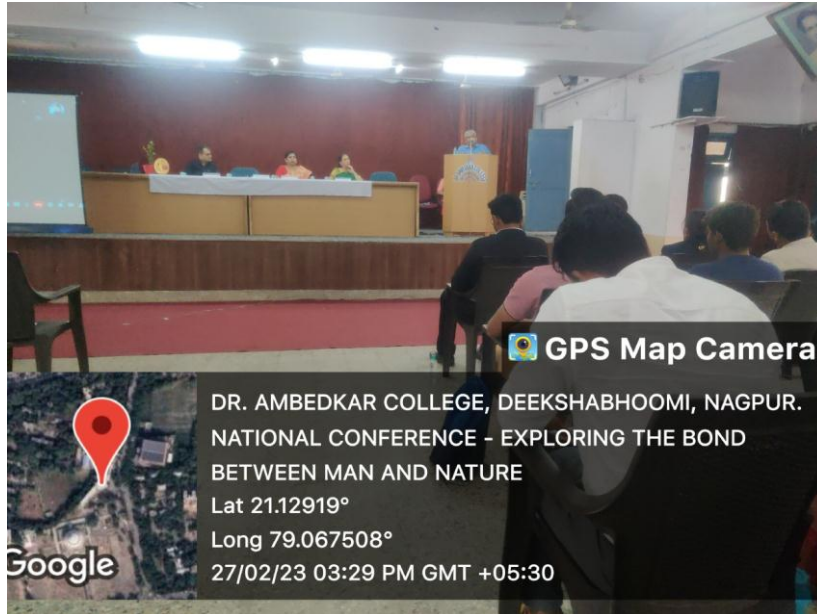

Dr. Anil Sonawane, Mumbai also spoke on eco-criticism by sharing a power point presentation. His discussion was primarily focused on the concept and definitions of literary theories which came up simultaneously and exceptional existence of eco-criticism through all odds.

He said that all theories face some kind of resistance in the beginning but once they are accepted for discussion among litterateurs, it comes to the fore and settle for good reasons.

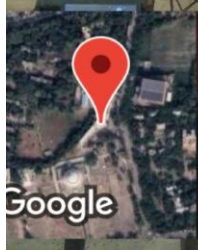

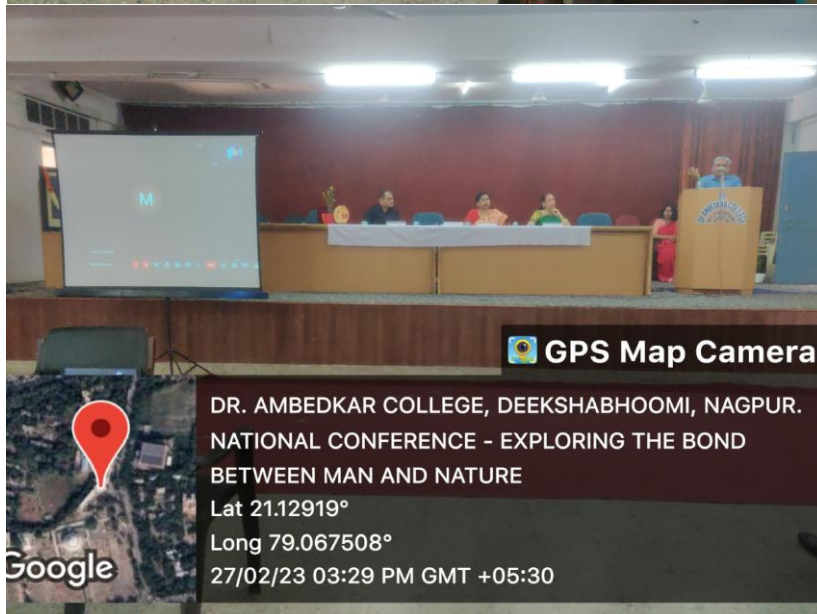

The programme was largely attended by Post Graduate students of parent institution and local colleges and researchers.
