‘Ranbhaji Utsav’ (Forest Vegetables Festival) was held at Post Graduate Teaching Department of Home Science, Mahatma Jotiba Fule Educational Campus, RTM Nagpur University, Nagpur on 21/07/2023. To create awareness and promote vegetables grown in the wild amongst the students, Department of Botany, Dr. Ambedkar College, Deekshabhoomi, Nagpur organized a Visit to Ranbhaji Utsav.

Various varieties of items prepared from many types of forest or wild vegetables known to have high medicinal value and rich in fibre, proteins and vitamins was made exhibited in raw and also cooked Ranbhaji for consumption for visitors. Such wild vegetables are available only during the monsoon season. Earlier villagers used to survive and live healthy by consuming this forest vegetable, which is now forgotten by villagers. But with awareness, city dwellers, though eager to consume organic food, find it difficult to find forest vegetables. People don’t get it, and that’s the reason we are trying to bring out a concept where people get access to forest vegetables.

Total 35 students have visited the Ranbhaji Utsav. This visit was successfully carried out under the supervision of Dr. S.R. Somkuwar, HoD, Botany and Dr. Rahul B. Kamble, Assistant Professor.
