The workshop was aimed at as hand-on training about gardening practices with its various methods for promoting sustainable living and encouraging student participants to adopt gardening practices as a hobby. Eventually it helps beat stress and brings emotional well beings.

The workshop was conducted under the expertise of Dr. Rahul B. Kamble, Co-ordinator, Garden Cell, Prof. Labhesh B. Parteti, Assistant Professor and Mr. K.D. Pandhare, Gardener with gardening enthusiasts who provided participants with practical guidance on growing plants, herbs, and vegetables in their homes. The workshop covered the following topics:

DR. AMBEDKAR COLLEGE, DEEKSHABHOOMI, NAGPUR

Introduction to gardening: The workshop started with a brief introduction to gardening and its benefits. The facilitator emphasized the importance of gardening in promoting a sustainable lifestyle and reducing one's carbon footprint.

Types of plants: The facilitator then discussed different types of plants that are suitable for beginners, such as herbs, vegetables, and flowering plants.

Soil preparation: The facilitator explained the importance of soil preparation and how to create the right soil mix for different types of plants. Planting techniques: The participants were then taught different planting techniques, including seed planting, transplanting, and container gardening.

Watering and fertilizing: The facilitator provided tips on how to water plants effectively and how to use organic fertilizers to keep plants healthy.

Pest control: The workshop concluded with a discussion on natural pest control methods, including companion planting and using natural pesticides.

The workshop was attended by 75 participants, including students and faculty members of the Dr. Ambedkar College, Deekshabhoomi, Nagpur. The participants actively participated in the workshop and asked several questions to the facilitator, which were promptly answered. The workshop was highly informative and well organized. It provided participants with practical guidance on gardening and motivated them to start their own gardens.

Prof. Shruti Kharwade, and Prof. Payal Borkar were present for the event. Mr. Ayush Dongre acted as the Student Co-ordinator for the event.
