Aptitude Test for B. Sc I (2025-26) Students

The objective of conducting an aptitude test is to evaluate an individual's inherent abilities, skills, and potential for learning or performing specific tasks. Aptitude tests aim to measure how well a person can apply reasoning, problem-solving, and analytical thinking in different contexts.

An Aptitude test based on the basic knowledge of the students of BSc I year of Department of Physics was conducted on 27th August 2026. Overall, 80 students of 1st year appeared for the test. Analysis of the result shows that 23 % students scored above 90% marks, 44% students scored within 70% to 90% marks (average) and 31 % students scored below 70% marks (below average). It was decided that the Department will pay more attention to the students scoring below average marks by monitoring their class attendance, test examination and devoting more time to guide them properly. Bright students and average students will be given proper attention in order to boost their knowledge and to get good score in the examination. At the same time weak students will be given due care so as to improve their grades.
